A QUARTERLY BIBLIOGRAPHY OF UNIVERSITY PRESS PUBLICATIONS

May-July 1961

Published by The University of Chicago with the cooperation of the Association of American University Presses

In this periodical, all members of the Association of American University Presses present an annotated listing of all books, monographs and scholarly journals that bear their imprints and are offered for sale. Each issue of this quarterly bibliography is mailed to American scholars to keep them abreast of scholarly publishing in America.

In the last issue of Scholarly Books in America, about five of every six books listed were in the social sciences or the humanities. Books in the biological and physical sciences lagged far behind, as usual. Aren't university presses interested in all aspects of science? Why the big discrepancy?

There is no doubt about the interest which university publishers have in science, and the list of scientific works they have published is long. But a simple fact of academic life keeps the proportion of scientific titles low. A chemist or physicist can summarize years of research in a brief article. A botanist or zoologist, unless he deals in taxonomy, can do the same. But interpreting the past, as historians must, is a wordy enterprise. So are literary criticism, biography, and some aspects of the social sciences. It is completely natural that workers in these fields should produce more book-length manuscripts than their colleagues in the laboratory.

Many a scientist with dozens of articles in his bibliography would be hard put to produce a book-length manuscript in his field of specialization. He relies instead on journal publication; and, of course, university presses issue many of these journals.

He was an anthropologist, and he had just completed a manuscript on Plains Indian culture. When he sent a description of the work to several university press directors, he was invited by three of them to submit his manuscript for consideration.

"Wonderful," his wife said. "Send each of them a copy, and surely you'll get an acceptance from at least one."

"I'd like to," he said, "but it doesn't work that way. I must submit the thing to one publisher at a time, then wait for his reaction before I can send it on to another one."

"That's silly. If you had a car to sell, you'd take it to every dealer in town and see who'd make you the best offer. Isn't this the same kind of situation?"

"Not quite. A university publisher can't walk around a manuscript, kick the tires, and tell you he'll take it. First of all, studies of Plains Indian culture are not best-sellers, and each of these publishers knows he will be lucky to break even on such a book. Before he accepts it, he must go through a complicated system of appraisal. He'll ask one or two scholars at his own university to read it, and probably will send it off the campus for still another reading. He'll have his production department figure the cost of printing, and the sales department estimate how many copies can be sold. Then, when he is convinced that he wants the book, he must take the manuscript to his editorial board for final acceptance—and perhaps one, two, or even all the members will want to have a look at it. It is hardly fair to ask him to involve himself to this extent while other publishers at other presses are going through the same procedure with the same manuscript. All but one of them are sure to be wasting time and money.

"Now and then," he went on, "a scholar will go ahead and submit his work to several publishers at once. But when he does, he should inform each one that others are considering the work. Then the publisher himself can decide whether he wants to invest his time and money in an evaluation of the manuscript."

"I don't know," his wife said. "It seems awfully time-consuming."

"It is," said the anthropologist sadly. "It is."

When a publisher compiles a number of journal articles, or excerpts from books, and issues them under his own imprint as a single collection, he usually obtains a copyright registration in his own name. In doing so, he claims copyright protection for the form in which his compilation appears, for any new prefatory matter he has added, etc., but he does not assert any claim to copyright of the individual selections. Copyright is most commonly held by the original publisher or the author.

Many scholars do not understand this point, and when they wish to obtain permission to quote from such material they frequently write to the publisher of the collection. If you wish permission to quote from a selection in such an edition, you will almost certainly find that the original publisher holds copyright. A phrase such as "used by permission" or "copyright 1950 by So-and-So" will direct you to the person or agency from whom permission to quote or reprint must be obtained.

This column is conducted to provide one more channel of communication between university presses and the scholars they serve. Have you a comment, a question, or a gripe about scholarly publishing? Letters sent to the writer of these lines, at the University of Illinois Press, Urbana, Ill., will guide him in the preparation of future columns. No letters will be published, and no personal replies will be made unless yours is a dire case.

The Scholar and Income Taxes

MAURICE C. GREENBAUM

Until recently scholars were one of the few segments of our society not primarily concerned with the alchemy of converting ordinary income into capital gains. Today, with an expanded economy and universally high tax rates, scholars are just as concerned with the technical details of our tax laws as any member of the business community. For the Galbraiths, the Schlesingers, the Mattinglys and the others whose writings appear on the best seller lists, a second article will appear in an early issue of SBA, devoted to the more sophisticated refinements of our tax laws as they relate to the more affluent writer in our affluent society. This first article is devoted primarily to the tax problems of a more universal nature as they apply to the majority of scholars.

Deductibility of Business Expenses

Taxpayers are permitted a standard deduction of 10% of their adjusted gross income up to $1,000 before they face the necessity of itemizing specific deductions. Without regard for business expenses, a taxpayer who owns his own home and therefore has to pay fairly substantial real estate taxes and interest on a mortgage, will usually find it advantageous to itemize his personal deductions. But even where the standard deduction is used (so that charitable contributions, medical expenses, etc., may not be itemized and deducted) all expenses attributable to a separate business and certain expenses as an employee may be first deducted in order to determine the "adjusted gross income" to which the 10% standard deduction is applied. An independent contractor (such as the recipient of a grant) is permitted to deduct all trade and business expenses to determine adjusted gross income. An employee (who is under the control of his employer) may deduct only travel expenses away from home, reimbursed expenses (which he first includes in income) and transportation expenses. All other expenses of an employee may be deducted only if the standard deduction is not elected.

Whether the standard deduction is used or not, the following types of deductions may be pertinent: secretarial expenses, research expenses, microfilming, photostats, typing, travel expenses, professional society dues, cost of attending professional meetings, as well as any legal and accounting fees. It must be borne in mind, however, that expenses on behalf of an employer which should properly be reimbursed cannot be converted into a tax deduction merely by not seeking the reimbursement which is available.

The cost of purchasing professional journals and magazines may also be deducted. The cost of purchasing books, however, is considered a capital expenditure and may not be taken as a current deduction. Instead, the items comprising a professional library may be depreciated over the estimated useful life of the particular book. In other words, the entire cost of the book may not be taken as an income tax deduction in a single year, but, rather, must be spread over a period of years.

Under some circumstances it may be possible to take a portion of the home expenses as a business deduction if the home is used as an office as well. The Internal Revenue Service will permit such a deduction only in cases where there is actually a part of the home used as an office. Where applicable, a proportionate part of the house expenses, including heat, light, utilities, maintenance, cleaning, etc., may be an appropriate income tax deduction. The allocation may be made on a square footage basis or on a per-room basis. The Internal Revenue Service will usually accept either method provided it is put forth on a reasonable basis. Whatever the method, the specific allocation must be supported by the precise data from which the allocation was made.

In this connection, it cannot be stressed too strongly that many reasonable and proper tax deductions are forfeited for failure to maintain and preserve adequate records with respect to the expenditures. Cancelled checks and bills are of course the most desirable method of supporting a particular expense. In other cases, however, diary entries or some form of contemporaneous billing record may be acceptable. In the case of expenses related to writing, it is a wise precaution to date all research notes, and at the same time indicate the precise place at which they were made.

The expenses incurred in writing an article or a book are deductible for income tax purposes so long as the expense was incurred for a writing which was done for the purpose of producing income, or was directly related to the income-producing activity of the writer. Typing, research, and similar expenses in connection with an article written for a scholarly journal which produces no income may, nevertheless, be taken as an income tax deduction if the article is an adjunct to other professional income producing activities. The test for deductibility is the same test applied to the expenses of the average business man—was the expense one which may be deemed "ordinary and necessary" in relation to the profession of the writer?

From a technical standpoint, it is immaterial whether the expenses actually produce any income at all or whether they produce income in the current year. As a practical matter, however, if there is a wide disparity between the amount of the expenses in relation to the income of the writer in the same year, the Internal Revenue Service may scrutinize the deductions very closely. In the case of a work requiring considerable research over a period of years, the writer may show a loss during such years before any substantial income is realized. Nevertheless, if the work in question produces income in a later year, there will be less difficulty in justifying the expenses incurred in the earlier years.

Deduction of Educational Cost

As most parents are painfully aware these days, our tax laws do not permit the deduction of expenses incurred for "general educational aspirations" or to prepare oneself for a particular field of endeavor. Treasury Department regulations, however, do permit a deduction for educational costs undertaken primarily for the purpose of "maintaining or improving skills required by the taxpayer in his employment or other trade. . . ." The regulations also permit a deduction for costs incurred to meet additional educational requirements necessitated by law as well as those requirements imposed by an employer as a condition of retention of the employee's salary, status, or employment. Such a requirement must of course have a bona-fide connection with the employee's services.

By and large, the courts have been taking a much more liberal attitude with respect to the deductibility of educational costs "required" of teachers by their employers. The recent case of Devereaux v. Commissioner (decided by the Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit in June, 1961) is an interesting example of this more liberal attitude. In order to acquire permanent tenure at Pennsylvania State, Professor Devereaux was required to have a terminal degree by the notice date of July 1, 1954. In June of that year he started work on a Ph.D. degree at the University of Pittsburgh. On the basis of his commencing the work, the University granted him permanent tenure. In his testimony before the Tax Court, Professor Devereaux stated that he had committed himself to study for a degree in order to influence the University not to give him notice of termination. He went on to state, however, that he also expected that the higher degree would be pertinent to future promotion in rank and salary. Once he received notice of permanent tenure, he was not legally obligated to continue his course of study. On the basis of the foregoing, the Tax Court held that the costs of attending the University of Pittsburgh were not deductible because the taxpayer's primary purpose was to qualify for a new and better position at the University. The Court of Appeals, however, felt that he was under a real obligation to continue his course of study once the University granted him tenure, and that the expenses were deductible because they were incurred primarily to preserve his employment. The opinion of the court stressed the fact that something less than a legally enforceable obligation to pursue a course of study will suffice to sustain a tax deduction.

From a tax standpoint the requirement of advanced study by an employer may be a boon rather than a burden. Because of such requirements, thousands of teachers taking summer courses have been allowed to deduct the cost of such courses on the theory that they are necessary to maintain a particular rank or salary status. On the other hand, a university instructor was denied a deduction for a European tour even though he showed that his university employer required him to devote one of every three summers to "travel, reading, resting and self-improvement" (Thomas T. Dennehy, May 1961). In an earlier case, the Tax Court similarly disallowed the expense of an extensive European trip by a music teacher who took a tour to secure additional credit in order to meet certificate requirements of "in-service study and training." The regulations of the institutional employer provided that such a tour could be taken for credit as an alternative to taking actual summer courses. The Tax Court held that while academic credit might be given for such a tour, the Treasury Department properly refused to give tax credit for the expenses of such a tour.

The deduction of travel expenses by a scholar need not depend upon the preservation of an income-paying job. In the Brooks case, the Tax Court denied a research associate in Physiology, who was working without a salary at a university, a deduction for travel expenses to Europe to study cellular growth at various institutions on the Continent. The Court of Appeals, however, rejected the Tax Court's reasoning that since the taxpayer was not receiving income from her work she could not claim the deduction. The Court reasoned that one need not necessarily have a specific income-paying job to carry on a "trade or business" and granted the taxpayer an income tax deduction for the expenses incurred in connection with her "business of research."

Taxability of Prizes, Awards and Fellowships

Amounts received as a prize or award are included within the broad definition of taxable income. Since 1954, however, there has been a specific exception in the case of prizes and awards made primarily in recognition of achievement in a given field. The exclusion is pertinent, however, only if (1) the prize winner was selected without any action on his part to enter a contest or proceeding, and (2) the recipient is not required to render substantial future services as a condition to receiving the prize or award.

The Internal Revenue Service has ruled that under this provision the Pulitzer Prize and the Stalin Peace Prize, for example, are excluded from income as being in the nature of a gift. Similarly, the Treasury Department has ruled that an annual award presented to an outstanding teacher is not deemed taxable income where none of the teachers knew he was being considered for the award nor did he perform any special work for it. On the other hand, the Internal Revenue Service has ruled that prizes awarded to faculty members on an individual merit basis to supplement their annual salary were to be considered as additional taxable income.

Scholarships and fellowships are also treated as nontaxable. In order to qualify as a nontaxable scholarship the award must be granted by a tax exempt organization or governmental agency for a course of study at an educational institution maintaining a regular faculty and curriculum and having a regular body of students in attendance. A tax exempt fellowship is a grant made by the same type of organization to any individual to aid him in his pursuit of study or research. In the case of recipients who are not candidates for a degree, however, there is a limitation of $300 times the number of months for which the grant is made, with a maximum of 36 months. In addition, amounts received and spent for incidental expenses of travel, research, clerical help, or equipment are excluded without limitation.

If the grantee of a fellowship has part of the funds allocated to room and board away from home, the Treasury Department has ruled that that part of the fund is excluded in addition to the $300 per month otherwise allowable. It is obvious, therefore, that some prior thought by granting organizations to the phrasing of their grants may spell out a substantially different tax impact on the persons whom they are trying to assist.

In this same connection, teachers in residence who are furnished lodging and board may be accorded varying tax treatment depending upon how their contracts are worded with respect to these items. Normally, the receipt of room and board without charge is considered to be additional income to the extent of their fair market value. On the other hand, to the extent that these emoluments are furnished for the "convenience of the employer" they are nontaxable. In appropriate circumstances, a recital in a contract that the presence of a teacher in residence is deemed to be in the best interest of the institution, etc., and that such residence is made a specific condition of employment, will effectively preclude any assiduous assault by the tax collector.

Finally, where scholarships or fellowships are granted by an educational institution, if there is any doubt about the nontaxability to the recipient, there would be a concomitant question of tax withholding by the payor institution. In such cases, it is possible to request a ruling from the Internal Revenue Service in Washington regarding the applicability of the exclusion provisions. One midwestern university follows the practice of requesting such a ruling with respect to practically all scholarships that it grants.

It should be apparent that a little foresight on the part of educational institutions may alleviate the tax burdens that fall upon the scholar no less than on the business man. Similarly, the same kind of foresight and a careful attention to keeping records of expenditures will go a long way toward helping the scholar minimize the tax impact on his income. In appropriate cases, seeking professional accounting or legal advice is to be recommended.

Agriculture and Animal Science

BAUM, E. L., Howard G. Diesslin, and Earl O. Heady, eds. Capital and Credit Needs in a Changing Agriculture. 406 p.

6 x 9 in. $4.95 IOWA STATE, JUNE 20

This book presents the viewpoints of 53 leading authorities on all phases of capital and credit problems. It was designed to stimulate the thinking of those who are guiding farmers to make needed agricultural adjustments.

BENBROOK, Edward A., and Margaret W. Sloss. Veterinary Clinical Parasitology. 3rd ed. 240 p., 300 photomicrographs.

6 x 9 in. $6.50 IOWA STATE, MAY 10

A standard reference in its field, this work has been revised and expanded with a new section on blood parasites. It includes sections on fecal examination, identification of skin and internal mites, and the diagnosis of louse infestations.

CENTER for Agricultural and Economic Adjustment at Iowa State University. Adjustments in Agriculture—A National Basebook. Ed. by Mervin Smith and Carlton Christian. 376 p.

5½ x 8½ in. $3.95 IOWA STATE, JUNE 1

This source book assembles, coordinates and interprets data on U.S. agriculture and presents them in a usable manner. The 18 contributing authors are leading authorities in their fields.

HEADY, Earl O., and others, eds. Agricultural Supply Functions. 305 p.

6 x 9 in. $3.95 IOWA STATE, JUNE 15

This intensive analysis of the statistical and empirical tools available for agricultural supply prediction stresses the relationship between agricultural supply and our general price-income problems and the need for adapting farm policies accordingly.

JOHANSSON, Ivar. Genetic Aspects of Dairy Cattle Breeding. 259 p., illus.

6 x 9 in. $7.50 ILLINOIS, JULY 17

In this book an international authority on animal genetics surveys present knowledge and research in regard to the genetics of economically important characters of dairy cattle and the methods for their improvement. The author believes selective breeding can increase even further the milk yield of cows.

KELLOGG, Winthrop N. Porpoises and Sonar. 177 p., illus.

5½ x 8½ in. $4.50 CHICAGO, JUNE 13

This is the story of how the author and other researchers investigated the elaborate method of "seeing with ears" used by the porpoise, a method that antedates—by millenniums—and surpasses man's electric sonar achievement.

LIONBERGER, Herbert F. Adoption of New Ideas and Practices. 164 p.

5½ x 8½ in. $3.50 IOWA STATE, JUNE 1

This work is basically a review of studies on communication with and adoption of ideas and practices by farm people. It makes available the research done in the adoption of farm practices.

Anthropology and Archaeology

ANDERSON, J. K. Ancient Greek Horsemanship. 329 p., plates.

6 x 9 in. $8.75 CALIFORNIA, MAY 8

This is the first book to examine both archaeological and literary data and to make possible a new understanding of the role of the horse in Greek war tactics, travel, sports and the major festivals.

BELLINGER, Alfred R. Troy: The Coins. Supplementary Monograph 2. (Published for the University of Cincinnati.) 220 p., 27 p. plates.

8½ x 11½ in. $17.50 PRINCETON, JUNE 19

This supplement to the four-volume report of the excavations at Troy describes the 575 pieces of money and traces the history of the mints of Ilium and Alexander Troas, from which most of the coins came.

CLARK, Grahame. World Prehistory: An Outline. 283 p.

5½ x 8½ in. Paper, $2.45; cloth, $6.00 CAMBRIDGE, MAY 26

This outline of the prehistory of the whole world gives an account of the development of the human race up to the stage of civilization when each culture began to keep detailed records from which history may be written.

DRIVER, Harold E. Indians of North America. 667 p., illus.

6½ x 9½ in. $10.95 CHICAGO, MAY 2

This book describes the enormous variation of culture patterns among Indians, from the Arctic to Panama, at the high points of their histories. It is suitable as a text for students having a previous introduction to anthropology.

FAKHRY, Ahmed. The Pyramids. 260 p., illus.

6 x 9 in. $5.95 CHICAGO, MAY 16

This book is unique in its historical treatment of the sequence of the pyramids, from the first essentially uncomplicated structures, through the grandeur of the finest examples, to the less lavish monuments at the end of the era.

MALINOWSKI, Bronislaw. The Dynamics of Culture Change. Reissue. (Yale Paperbound, Y-47.) 171 p.

5½ x 8 in. Paper, $1.45 YALE, JUNE 21

This work describes the nature of culture contact, explores the dynamic changes that arise from it and outlines specific methods for its study. The author then applies his methods to specific problems of culture contact in East and South Africa.

SCHWARTZ, Douglas W. The Tinsley Hill Site. (University of Kentucky Studies in Anthropology, no. 1.) 108 p., illus., map.

6½ x 9½ in. Paper, $2.00 KENTUCKY, JULY 1

This report, the first in the University of Kentucky Studies in Anthropology, is a thoroughly documented study of a late prehistoric stone grave in Lyon County, Kentucky.

SPICER, Edward H., ed. Perspectives in American Indian Culture Change. 549 p. 6 x 9½ in. $10.00 CHICAGO, MAY 2

These six studies of the Yaquis, Pueblos, Mandans, Navahos, Wasco-Wishram and Kwakiutl consider the whole series of changes in Indian ways of life, from the earliest contacts with Europeans to the present. The conditions of change are described and compared and related to broad cultural change.

STEIN, William W. Hualcan: Life in the Highlands of Peru. (Cornell Studies in Anthropology.) 383 p., frontis., illus., maps. 6 x 9 in. $6.00 CORNELL, MAY 31

The first full length examination in English of a contemporary Peruvian Indian community, this is a detailed study of an isolated village in the Andean foothills. The author quotes these Quechua-speaking Indians at length re customs, fears, beliefs.

UNESCO. Race and Science. 506 p. 5½ x 8½ in. $5.00 COLUMBIA, MAY 8

This volume includes studies by natural and social scientists participating in UNESCO's program on Race and Culture. Such topics as the race concept, the significance of racial difference, racial myths, race mixture and race in relation to biology, culture, history, psychology and mental health are discussed.

Art and Architecture

ARS Orientalis IV. 462 p., plates, figs. 9 x 11½ in. $31.00 SMITHSONIAN, JUNE 20

Volume 4 of this technical journal of the arts of Islam and the East, which is published about every two years under the joint imprint of the Smithsonian (Freer Gallery of Art) and the University of Michigan (Fine Arts Department). This issue includes articles, notes and book reviews.

BIEBER, Margarete. The History of the Greek and Roman Theater. 2nd ed., rev. and enlarged. 343 p., 865 illus. 8½ x 11 in. $17.50 PRINCETON, MAY 22

In a comprehensive survey, Dr. Bieber uses all types of available evidence including latest archaeological findings to present a clear interpretation of every phase in the development of the theater (the dominant art form) through several centuries.

BOTHMER, Dietrich von. Ancient Art from New York Private Collections. 188 p., illus.

9 x 6½ in. $5.00

METROPOLITAN MUSEUM, MAR. 24

This catalogue of art from many ancient civilizations, owned by New York members of the Archaeological Institute of America, commemorates a special exhibition at The Metropolitan Museum of Art, December 17, 1959-February 28, 1960. Every piece is illustrated.

CONDIT, Carl W. American Building Art: The Twentieth Century. 427 p., illus.

7½ x 9½ in. $15.00

OXFORD, MAY 18

This handsome volume investigates one of the most important but neglected areas of American art and engineering: the story of building techniques and structural art. Professor Condit analyzes suspension bridges, metropolitan parkways, hydroelectric systems and concrete construction.

CRAVEN, Roy C., Jr. Indian Sculpture in the John and Mable Ringling Museum of Art. (University of Florida Monographs, Humanities, no. 6.) 28 p.

6 x 9 in. Paper, $2.00

FLORIDA, JULY 17

This textual and photographic description of fourteen Indian sculptures now on display at the John and Mable Ringling Museum of Art in Sarasota provides each with its date, region of origin and spiritual significance.

HERBERT, Eugenia W. The Artist and Social Reform: France and Belgium, 1885-1898. (Yale Historical Publications, miscellany 74.) 236 p., plates.

6 x 9½ in. $5.00

YALE, JUNE 21

In this perceptive study of the fundamental dilemma of the French and Belgian avant-garde at the end of the 19th century, the author relates how the painters and poets associated themselves with radicalism and its effect on their art.

KEILER, Manfred L. The Art in Teaching Art. 247 p., illus.

8½ x 11 in. $6.25

NEBRASKA, MAY 19

This book emphasizes philosophical and pedagogical concepts of art and teaching. It covers problems and practices in the teaching of art and gives specific information on art techniques and media that bear on the educational process.

PARKER, Stanley Brampton. Linear Perspective without Vanishing Points. 36 p., illus. 8½ x 11 in. Paper, $2.50

HARVARD, JUNE 22

Those wishing to use a quick and dramatic method of picturing the three dimensions of objects at an accurate scale will find this compact presentation valuable. It deals with all aspects of orthogonal perspective and contains an elementary section omitting geometry and an advanced mathematics section.

RÖTHLISBERGER, Marcel. Claude Lorrain: The Paintings. 2 vols. 566 p., 437 plates.

7½ x 10 in. $40.00

YALE, JUNE 21

The entire painting œuvre of the great 17th century French landscape painter is made available for the first time in this scholarly edition. In addition to the complete paintings, the catalogue deals fully with copies, related drawings and major imitations.

SULLIVAN, Louis H. Democracy: A Man-Search. Intro. by Elaine Hedges. 388 p.

6 x 9 in. $7.95

WAYNE STATE, MAY 22

Sullivan considered Democracy his greatest work. It was not published during his lifetime. Sullivan held that an organic or functional art and architecture could emerge in the United States only from profound understanding of democracy.

SULLIVAN, Michael. An Introduction to Chinese Art. 223 p., 151 plates.

7½ x 9½ in. $8.00

CALIFORNIA, MAY 29

In this book the author covers the arts of China, major and minor, from the Stone Age to the establishment of the People's Republic. He deals with painting, sculpture, architecture, ceramics, bronzes and the decorative arts.

Biology

BRAUN, E. Lucy. The Woody Plants of Ohio: Trees, Shrubs, and Woody Climbers, Native, Naturalized, and Escaped. 362 p.

7½ x 10½ in. $7.50

OHIO STATE, MAY 15

This useful field guide and reference book contains over 300 distribution maps and line cuts of about 300 species, many illustrated in both winter and summer condition. It provides, through keys, a ready means of identifying Ohio's woody plants in any season.

CHRISTENSEN, Clyde M. The Molds and Man: An Introduction to the Fungi. Rev. ed. 238 p., illus.

5½ x 8½ in. Paper, $1.75; cloth, $4.75

MINNESOTA, MAY 15

This revised edition of a basic book for science classes has been brought up to date with new illustrations and a new chapter on experiments with fungi which replaces that on classification.

CZARNOWSKI, M. S. Dynamics of Even-Aged Forest Stands. 132 p., figs., tables.

6 x 9 in. $5.00

LOUISIANA, MAY 15

This study presents a new theory of forest-stand dynamics based on two major hypotheses for which the author has developed mathematical formulas. The author is former Dean of the Faculty of Forestry at Cracow University, Poland.

D'AMOUR, Fred E. Basic Physiology. 642 p., illus.

6 x 9 in. $7.95

CHICAGO, MAY 16

This introduction to the subject of human physiology is calculated to engage the reader not familiar with the subject. The book is up-to-date and broadly inclusive. It is suitable for use in high school or college courses in biology or hygiene.

DAVIES, David D. Intermediary Metabolism in Plants. 107 p.

5½ x 8½ in. $4.00

CAMBRIDGE, APR. 21

This book reviews the ideas and theories of biochemical action in plants, and discusses how the theories developed by animal biochemists need to be modified when applied to plant metabolism.

FORBES, James. A Laboratory Manual for Histology. 2nd ed. 132 p., illus.

7½ x 9½ in. Paper, $3.00

FORDHAM, JULY 5

This laboratory manual for a college course in histology correlates histology with embryology, anatomy and physiology. Pages for required drawings and for notes are included.

FRICK, George Frederick, and Raymond Phineas Stearns. Mark Catesby: The Colonial Audubon. See under HISTORY: AMERICAN.

GUBA, Emil Frederick. Monograph of Monochaetia and Pestalotia. 342 p., 125 illus.

6½ x 9½ in. $10.00

HARVARD, JUNE 10

A clear, concise treatment of the many species and varieties of fungi which form an important segment of the mycological world connected with plant disease and deterioration of organic materials. Species concept is based on morphologic characters. Pathologic aspects are also considered.

HALE, Mason E., Jr. Lichen Handbook. 178 p., plates, figs.

4½ x 7½ in. $4.00

SMITHSONIAN, JUNE 21

Offered as a semipopular introduction to lichenology, this book treats the morphology and reproduction of lichens and summarizes recent advances in the physiology and chemistry of lichens. Included are keys to more than 200 species and to the identification of the lichen acids.

IVLEV, V. S. Experimental Ecology of the Feeding of Fishes. 302 p.

5½ x 8½ in. $7.50

YALE, MAY 24

A professor at the Biological Station in Sevastopol, U.S.S.R., presents in this book a wide range of problems, from fisheries management to the theory of the dynamics of ecosystems, and summarizes the experimental investigations of the tropic ecology of fishes, conducted from 1939 to 1949.

LINDAUER, Martin. Communication among Social Bees. (Harvard Books in Biology, 2.)

143 p., 68 figs.

5½ x 8½ in. $4.75

HARVARD, MAY 10

"Language," by which bees communicate with one another, is the subject of this fascinating book. The deciphering of this language is described in detail, showing how a human observer can translate information given by the bees.

MCLEAN, Franklin C., and Marshall R. Urist. Bone: An Introduction to the Physiology of Skeletal Tissue. Rev. ed. 260 p., illus.

5½ x 8½ in. $6.00

CHICAGO, JUNE 13

A concise statement of the present status and important advances in the field of the skeletal system intended to fulfil the requirements of students of elementary biology, medical students, interns, and those in dentistry, radiology, surgery and medicine.

MARTIN, Arthur W., ed. Comparative Physiology of Carbohydrate Metabolism in Heterothermic Animals. 144 p., illus., charts, figs.

6 x 9 in. Paper, $3.50; cloth, $4.50

WASHINGTON, MAY 12

This is the first presentation in one volume of the physiological aspects of the carbohydrate metabolism of worms, arthropods, molluscs, fish, amphibia and reptiles.

PADILLA, Victoria. Southern California Gardens: An Illustrated History. 359 p.

6½ x 10½ in. $10.00 CALIFORNIA, JUNE 16

This book is an authentic, engaging account of the land and its flora, both native and naturalized, and of the men and women who devoted themselves to its cultivation.

ROSENBLITH, Walter A., ed. Sensory Communication. See under COMMUNICATIONS AND JOURNALISM.

WALLIS, J. B. The Cicindelidae of Canada. 74 p., illus., maps, biblio.

6 x 9 in. $5.00 TORONTO, JULY 8

An intensive study of the distinguishing characteristics, geographical distribution and variation, and habits and habitats of tiger beetles in Canada. One hundred and six color photographs identify some species and subspecies and a complete check list of all species and subspecies is given.

BENOIT, Emile. Europe at Sixes and Sevens: The Common Market, The Free Trade Association and the United States. 275 p.

6 x 9 in. $5.00 COLUMBIA, JUNE 5

Dr. Benoit offers a lucid analysis of both the EEC and FTA in terms of structure, goals, methods and accomplishment. He considers what American policy toward the European Common Market should be and offers steps for safeguarding American trade.

CONFERENCE on Research in Income and Wealth. Output, Input, and Productivity Measurement. (National Bureau of Economic Research, vol. 25.)

6 x 9 in. $10.00 PRINCETON, MAY 15

The contributions in this volume indicate that substantial progress is being made toward a comprehensive set of real output, input, productivity, and price estimates for the economy as a whole, for its major sectors, and for individual industries in the U.S. and abroad.

EDWARDS, Edgar O., and Philip W. Bell.

The Theory and Measurement of Business Income. 323 p.

6 x 9½ in. $7.50

CALIFORNIA, MAY 15

The authors of this book attempt to resolve the controversy between accountants and economists concerning the concept of income by suggesting a new framework for measuring income data that will require no critical change in present accounting techniques.

FILLLOL, Tomás Roberto. Social Factors in Economic Development: The Argentine Case. 118 p.

6 x 9 in. $3.75

M.I.T., MAY 8

This study of Argentina's economy and national character was written by an Argentine social scientist and businessman, who concludes that his country's failure to achieve a satisfactory economic development is basically due to the value orientation of Argentine society.

FORD, Joseph W. The Steel Import Problem. (Studies in Industrial Economics, no. 7.) 111 p.

6 x 9 in. Paper, $2.50

FORDHAM, MAY 15

This book gives an analysis of steel imports, generally and product by product, as a problem for the steel industry of the United States. The study also presents the relative positions of the steel industries of Japan and Western Europe.

FRIEDMANN, Wolfgang G., and George Kalmanoff. Joint International Business Ventures. 558 p.

6 x 9 in. $15.00

COLUMBIA, JUNE 26

This book shows how joint international business ventures can relate the resources of industrially developed nations to the needs and aspirations of less developed countries. Through 36 case studies, the authors assess the significance of direct foreign investments and special aspects of joint ventures.

GOODMAN, Bernard. Industrial Materials in Canadian American Relations. (Wayne State University Center for Economic Studies, Monograph no. 2.) 217 p., tables, charts, maps.

6 x 9 in. $7.00

WAYNE STATE, MAY 25

Vital information on industrial material, forest products and minerals previously scattered in various government reports has been brought together in this reference book for students and the general reader.

HIRSCHMAN, Albert O. The Strategy of Economic Development. Reissue. (Yale Paperbound, Y-40.) 217 p.

5½ x 8 in. Paper, $1.45

YALE, APR. 26

Stemming from the author's experience as a financial adviser and economic consultant in Latin America, this book presents an international view of the economic growth of underdeveloped countries. The author draws conclusions for planning and assistance.

HOOLEY, Richard W. Financing the Natural Gas Industry: The Role of Life Insurance Investment Policies. 218 p.

6 x 9 in. $6.00

COLUMBIA, MAY 15

Today, the rapidly expanding natural gas industry is being financed largely by life insurance companies. The author discusses this relationship and discusses what light this experience can shed on other lender-borrower relationships in our economy.

INTERNATIONAL Bank for Reconstruction and Development. The Economic Development of Venezuela. 494 p.

6 x 9 in. $8.50

JOHNS HOPKINS, MAY 5

After examining the key sectors of Venezuela's economy, its prospective financial resources and future financial needs, this report recommends investment priorities and policies, provides a four-year development program and a plan for financing its execution.

JASNY, Naum. Soviet Industrialization, 1928-1952. 467 p., charts.

6¼ x 9½ in. $10.00

CHICAGO, APR. 25

This book traces the development of Soviet industrialization from the end of the "NEP-New Economic Period," in 1927, to 1952, the statistical year preceding Stalin's death. It is as definitive a work as is possible considering the difficulties of dealing with information from the U.S.S.R.

KLAMAN, Saul B. The Postwar Residential Mortgage Market. (National Bureau of Economic Research.) 301 p.

6 x 9 in. $7.50

PRINCETON, JULY 31

5½ x 8½ in. $7.50

HARVARD, MAY 26

An interrelated group of essays by Nurkse, whose work on economic development and international trade has strongly influenced contemporary thinking. Gottfried Haberler contributes a valuable introduction.

PARISH, William J. The Charles Ifield Company: A Study of the Rise and Decline of Mercantile Capitalism in New Mexico. (Harvard Studies in Business History, 22.) 431 p.

6½ x 9½ in. $10.00

HARVARD, JUNE 12

A study of far western commercial enterprise from Santa Fe Trail days to the present, which clarifies the merchants' solutions of monetary exchange, balance of trade and transportation problems.

RAUNER, Robert M. Samuel Bailey and the Classical Theory of Value. 162 p.

5½ x 8½ in. $5.50

HARVARD, MAY 26

An assessment of the impact that Bailey's attack in 1825 on Ricardo's theory of value had upon Malthus, Mill and their contemporaries. A comprehensive bibliography is included.

ROBINSON, Mary E. Education for Social Change: Establishing Institutes of Public and Business Administration Abroad. See under POLITICAL SCIENCE.

SCHRIEBER, Albert N., and others. Defense Procurement and Small Business. 134 p.

6 x 9 in. $3.75

WASHINGTON, MAY 18

This survey of the practices and opinions of small business firms selling to defense programs presents the practices and opinions of the 1,165 small businesses which responded to the questionnaire of the researchers.

SHACKLE, G. L. S. Decision, Order and Time in Human Affairs. 302 p.

5½ x 8½ in. $6.50

CAMBRIDGE, JULY 21

Here is a reassessment of Shackle's basic ideas on expectation, uncertainty, decision and time in relation to economics. The author takes account of many constructive suggestions, criticisms and applications made during the last ten years. A final section sets out some economic illustrations of his argument.

SMITH, Vernon L. Investment and Production: A Study in the Theory of the Capital-Using Enterprise. (Harvard Economic Studies, 17.) 340 p., illus.

5½ x 8½ in. $7.50

HARVARD, JULY 28

Developing a unified theory of production and investment, Mr. Smith explores the nature of interdependence between "short-run" current account production and "long-run" investment planning.

SOMERS, Herman Miles, and Anne Ramsay. Doctors, Patients, and Health Insurance: The Organization and Financing of Medical Care. See under MEDICINE.

TRIFFIN, Robert. Gold and the Dollar Crisis. Reissue. (Yale Paperbound, Y-39.) 181 p.

5½ x 8 in. Paper, $1.45

YALE, APR. 26

America's foremost authority on gold and dollar movements examines the causes for the present dollar crisis and outlines reforms indispensable to the reconstruction of a sound and viable system of world payments in an expanding world economy.

Chemistry and Physics

BOUGUER, Pierre. Optical Treatise on the Gradation of Light. Tr. by W. E. Knowles Middleton. 247 p.

6 x 9 in. $13.00

TORONTO, JULY 29

This traité by the inventor of photometry was his definitive word on the subject. In the treatise he anticipated the modern theory of the visibility of objects in a horizontal direction through the atmosphere. The book will be of interest to those working in the field of optics and to students of the history of science.

BUDDEN, K. G. Radio Waves in the Ionosphere. 542 p.
6 x 9 in. $18.50 CAMBRIDGE, MAR. 24

This book gives the full mathematical theory of the reflection of radio waves in the ionosphere. It will serve as a textbook to those comparatively new to the subject and as a reference for engineers, mathematicians, physicists and radio specialists alike.

CHERDYNTSEV, V. V. Abundance of Chemical Elements. 304 p., illus.
6 1/2 x 9 1/4 in. $8.50 CHICAGO, JUNE 20

This work, based largely on the author's own investigations, collects and systematizes the information now available on the occurrence and distribution of the elements in a wide range of cosmic objects—the nebulae, stars, cosmic rays, planets, meteorites, the sun and the earth's crust.

DISSERTATIONS in Physics: An Indexed Bibliography of All Doctoral Theses Accepted by American Universities, 1861-1959. Comp. by M. Lois Marckworth. 803 p.
8 1/2 x 11 in. $17.50 STANFORD, JUNE 22

Part I of this work is an alphabetical author listing with bibliographical information. Part II is a permutation subject index produced on the IBM 704 Computer.

FERMI, Enrico. Elementary Particles. Re-issue. (Yale Paperbound, Y-48.) 110 p.
5 1/2 x 8 in. Paper, $1.25 YALE, JUNE 21

This volume makes accessible to the general student of physics the most significant results of the field theories of elementary particles, emphasizing simple, semi-quantitative procedures which require a minimum of mathematical apparatus.

JOHNSON, Francis S., ed. Satellite Environment Handbook. See under ENGINEERING.

LARGENT, Edward J. Fluorosis: The Health Aspects of Fluorine Compounds. 140 p.
6 1/2 x 9 1/4 in. $3.50 OHIO STATE, JULY 15

A comprehensive, up-to-date review of research on all aspects of fluoride metabolism and its toxicology with particular reference to industrial hazards, this book fills a need long felt by executives and medical directors in industry, public-health directors, lawyers, biochemists and toxicologists.

LEPRINCE-RINGUET, Louis. Atoms and Men. 117 p.
5 1/2 x 8 1/2 in. $3.00 CHICAGO, JULY 18

An internationally known atomic physicist has written this reassuringly sensitive book about the usefulness of science, its process, and the intellectual and material conditions it needs. He also discusses the personal relationship of the scientist to today's culture.

MELKANOFF, Michel A., and others. A Fortran Program for Elastic Scattering Analyses with the Nuclear Optical Model. 116 p.
8 1/2 x 11 in. Paper, $4.50 CALIFORNIA, MAY 3

This report describes in complete detail a Fortran code named Program Scat 4. It also contains a brief review of the basic theory, with a derivation of all formulas applied in the program and a description of machine specifications.

ROSE, David J., and Melville Clark, Jr. Plasmas and Controlled Fusion. 493 p.
6 x 9 in. $10.75 M.I.T., JUNE 16

This graduate-level text on plasma physics emphasizes thermonuclear processes. It is primarily a thorough and systematic presentation of principles, with some discussion of modern thermonuclear applications.

Communications and Journalism

EMERY, Walter B. Broadcasting and Government: Responsibilities and Regulations. 482 p.
6 x 9 in. $7.50 MICHIGAN STATE, MAY 27

This study is the first comprehensive examination of the role of governmental agencies in the control of wire and radio communication, particularly broadcasting. It also presents the important policies and regulations that govern these media.

FANO, Robert M. Transmission of Information: A Statistical Theory of Communications. See under ENGINEERING.

GARST, Robert E., and Theodore M. Bernstein. Headlines and Deadlines. 3rd ed. 237 p.

5½ x 8 in. $5.00 COLUMBIA, MAY 15

A classic on newspaper copy editing, this book describes the role of the copy editor in meeting deadlines. It gives typographical patterns of headlines, rules for fitting and suggestions for achieving strong headlines and avoiding weak ones.

HENNIE, Frederick C., III. Iterative Arrays of Logical Circuits. 242 p.

6 x 9½ in. $4.95 M.I.T., MAY 12

An exploration of the techniques for analyzing the behavior of one- and two-dimensional iterative networks formed of discrete, or logical, elements, showing that most questions about the behavior of iterative systems are recursively undecidable.

ROSENBLITH, Walter A., ed. Sensory Communication. 844 p.

6 x 9 in. $16.00 M.I.T., JULY 15

These proceedings of an international symposium held at M.I.T. in 1959 present the experimental results and theoretical discussions of 42 life scientists, physical scientists and communications and computer engineers concerned with problems of sensation and perception.

WIENER, Norbert. Cybernetics: or Control and Communication in the Animal and the Machine. 2nd ed. 212 p.

6 x 9 in. $6.50 M.I.T., MAY 29

This new edition of a classic study of human control functions and the mechanoelectrical systems designed to replace them includes a review of the field since 1948 and two new chapters on learning, self-reproducing machines, brain waves and self-organizing systems.

Education

ANDREWS, Michael F., ed. Creativity and Psychological Health. 148 p., illus.

6 x 9 in. Paper, $2.25 SYRACUSE, JULY 25

These papers were presented by specialists in many disciplines (psychology, philosophy, sociology, medicine, art and education) at the Conference on Creative Art Education at Syracuse University. The others discuss creativity as an essential part of psychological health in the individual experience.

FITE, Gilbert C., and others, eds. Elmer Ellis: Teacher, Scholar, and Administrator. 304 p.

6 x 9 in. $5.95 MISSOURI, JUNE 10

Three essays concerning the career of Ellis, President of the University of Missouri since 1955, generous selections from Ellis' published books in history, and a collection of his speeches on the problems, needs and goals of higher education in Missouri and the nation are included in this book.

HOULE, Cyril O. The Inquiring Mind. 87 p.
5½ x 8½ in. Paper, $1.50; cloth, $5.00

WISCONSIN, JUNE 2

The author finds several different types of adults interested in improving their education, and in this book tells what their backgrounds have been, what they think about themselves, and what they think about the non-learners around them.

SACKS, Benjamin. The Religious Issue in the State Schools of England & Wales, 1902-1914. 292 p.

6 x 9 in. $5.00 NEW MEXICO, JUNE 1

In this currently important study of Britain's endeavor to face the moral and economic problems arising from religious issues in education, Anglican, Roman Catholic, Nonconformist, Secularist and Jewish points of view are presented thoroughly and impartially.

SHELDON, William D. Influences upon Reading Instruction in the United States. (J. Richard Street Lecture Series.) 67 p.

4½ x 6½ in. Paper, $1.00; cloth, $2.00

SYRACUSE, JULY 20

Discussion of the many conflicting approaches to the teaching of reading: group vs. individual instruction; phonic vs. word recognition method, etc.; and how they can all contribute to better teaching of reading.

SISAM, J. W. B. Forestry Education at Toronto. 116 p.

6 x 9 in. $5.00 TORONTO, MAY 20

This record of the Faculty of Forestry in the University covers the people and events which have influenced its development over the past fifty years. The author traces the expansion of forestry education, primarily in the University but also in the Province of Ontario as a whole, and describes contemporary activities.

STANLEY, George, and Guy Sylvestre, eds. Canadian Universities Today: Les Universités canadiennes aujourd'hui. (Royal Society of Canada, 6.) 97 p.

6 x 9 in. $4.00

TORONTO, JUNE 3

This is a report of the 1960 annual symposium, "The Responsibilities of Canadian Universities," which was concerned with current problems: national and local, far-reaching and immediate, scientific and humanist, French- and English-Canadian, financial and intangible.

STEFIC, Edward C., ed. Psychological Counseling in High School and College. 104 p.

5½ x 8½ in. $7.00

OXFORD, MAY 4

A brilliant study of the rise of a new American liberal philosophy, and of the men and magazine—The New Republic—that advanced it and were caught in its contradictions. It examines one of the major turning points in American political thought.

FRICK, George Frederick, and Raymond Phineas Stearns. Mark Catesby: The Colonial Audubon. 137 p., 16 black and white plates.

8½ x 10½ in. $5.00

ILLINOIS, MAY 8

This biography of Catesby, the "founder of American ornithology," clears away the obscurity which surrounds Catesby the man and evaluates his importance as a naturalist and scientific artist. He developed a new genre of ornithological illustration and prepared the way for Audubon.

GARA, Larry. The Liberty Line: The Legend of the Underground Railroad. 201 p.

6 x 9 in. $5.00

KENTUCKY, MAY 1

Mr. Gara is the first to undertake a systematic study of the origin and development of the legend, and he concludes that even recent historians have accepted as factual much that is partly or wholly fictitious.

GILBERT, Felix. To the Farewell Address. 173 p.

5½ x 8½ in. $3.75

PRINCETON, JUNE 5

In this work, a distinguished scholar studies the "new diplomacy" of the American states against the background of European experience and theory. He traces the shift from involvement in power politics to a concept of isolationism and concludes with a study of Washington's Farewell Address, a summary of the entire development.

GRANT, Charles S. Democracy in the Connecticut Frontier Town of Kent. 227 p.

6 x 9 in. $5.00

COLUMBIA, MAY 1

Were the small New England towns in colonial America organized on a democratic basis? In this study of the town of Kent, the author concludes its society was truly democratic. He discusses the settlement in terms of inhabitants, land disposal, franchise and organization of government.

GREEN, Fletcher M., ed. Ferry Hill Plantation Journal: January 4, 1838-January 15, 1839. (James Sprunt Studies in History and Political Science, 43.) 139 p.

5½ x 8½ in. $5.00 OXFORD, MAY 11

Virtually a chronological "biography" of James Joyce's last two works, this detailed account of Ulysses and Finnegans Wake traces the genesis and growth of these two classics from Joyce's early rough drafts through his many revisions.

LOGAN, James V. Wordsworthian Criticism: A Guide and Bibliography. Reissue. 304 p.

6 x 9 in. $5.00 OHIO STATE, MAY 15

In this study the author analyzes a selected body of Wordsworthian criticism from the poet's own day to the present. The book includes a selected bibliography covering the period between 1850 and 1944.

MILLER, Henry Knight. Essays on Fielding's "Miscellanies": A Commentary on Volume One. 474 p.

5½ x 8½ in. $10.00 PRINCETON, JULY 31

This book is a reference guide to the first of three volumes of poetry, essays and satires written at the central point of Fielding's career and not previously studied in detail. The author examines Fielding's intellectual and moral ideas, literary techniques and the tradition of thought and style he drew upon.

MONTGOMERY, Robert L., Jr. Symmetry and Sense: The Poetry of Sir Philip Sidney. 134 p.

6 x 9 in. $4.00 TEXAS, JULY 24

An evaluation of Sidney's position in the mainstream of English Renaissance verse. Few Elizabethans left their impression so firmly fixed in Renaissance imagination as did Sidney, whom the author here examines as poet and critic. A study not of his personality but of the principles of his art.

NICOLOFF, Philip L. Emerson on Race and History: An Examination of "English Traits". 315 p.

6 x 9 in. $6.00 COLUMBIA, JULY 24

Emerson's concept of human history was strongly influenced by the ethnological tradition of racial preference and historical determinism. Professor Nicoloff discusses Emerson's exact role in this tradition.

ORSINI, Gian N. G. Benedetto Croce: Philosopher of Art and Literary Critic. 379 p. 6 x 9 in. $10.00 SOUTHERN ILLINOIS, MAY 29

This first thorough study of Croce's doctrines traces the development of his aesthetic philosophy and gives examples of his criticism. In addition, it contains a biographical sketch and up-to-date bibliography in English of Croce's works, including those translated into English.

STOCK, A. G. W. B. Yeats: His Poetry and Thought. 254 p.

5½ x 8½ in. $5.50 CAMBRIDGE, JULY 21

Professor Stock has written a critical interpretation of Yeats' poems for the reader who is interested in studying the poetry attentively but is not familiar with Yeats' prose or with his scholarship. She has also paid considerable attention to Yeats' borrowings from Eastern thought.

VOITLE, Robert. Samuel Johnson the Moralist. 188 p.

5½ x 8½ in. $4.25 HARVARD, MAY 26

Mr. Voitle deals with Johnson's rationalism, his idea of freedom of will, his social, political and theological concerns, and relates them to the popular ideas and tendencies of the time. Viewed thus, Johnson's ideas exhibit a rugged and compelling logical consistency.

WEINBERG, Bernard. A History of Literary Criticism in the Italian Renaissance. 2 vols. 1184 p.

6 x 9½ in. $20.00 per set CHICAGO, JULY 5

The first section of this work is devoted to "Poetic Theory." It considers the growth of three major critical traditions—those of Horace, Plato and Aristotle. The second section, "Practical Criticism," discusses the application of these theories to particular works.

POETRY

ESLER, Richard Curry. Exits and Entrances. 71 p.

5½ x 8½ in. Paper, $1.25 PITTSBURGH, JUNE 26

Esler is a poet who speaks clearly for himself in his own idiom and who writes with imagination and descriptive power. This collection of thirty-eight poems is his first volume of verse. Some of the poems have appeared in magazines in this country and in Canada.

HOPKINS, Kenneth. Poor Heretic. 46 p.

4½ x 8 in. $2.50 TEXAS, JUNE 2

This slender volume of verse by a versatile English writer is the first collection of Mr. Hopkins' poems to appear in America. It includes a number of pieces written during his visit to the University of Texas as lecturer during the 1961 Spring Semester.

ROETHKE, Theodore. Words for the Wind. Reissue. (Indiana University Poetry Series.) 212 p.

5½ x 7½ in. Paper, $1.75 INDIANA, FEB. 20

Winner of the 1958 National Book Award, this re-issued volume of Roethke's poems includes The Waking, the collection that won the 1953 Pulitzer Prize.

REFERENCE AND BIBLIOGRAPHY

ASHEIM, Lester, ed. Persistent Issues in American Librarianship. (The University of Chicago Studies in Library Science.) 114 p.

6½ x 9½ in. $3.75 CHICAGO, MAY 2

This volume includes the papers of the Twenty-fifth Anniversary Conference of the Graduate Library School, which was devoted to an exploration of current trends and future possibilities in the field of library services.

Mathematics and General Science

CROMBIE, A. C. Augustine to Galileo. Vol. I: Science in the Middle Ages, V-XIII Centuries. Vol. II: Science in the Later Middle Ages and Early Modern Times, XIII-XVII Centuries. 296 p. and 380 p., illus.

4½ x 7½ in. $5.50 per set HARVARD, JUNE 14

This study shows that medieval scientific thought is deceptive both in similarities to and differences from modern science.

GOLDBERG, Richard R. Fourier Transforms. (Cambridge Tracts in Mathematics and Mathematical Physics, no. 52.) 76 p.

5½ x 8½ in. $3.75 CAMBRIDGE, MAR. 24

This work is a clear exposition of the elementary theory of Fourier transforms, so arranged as to give easy access to the recently developed abstract theory of Fourier transforms on a locally compact Abelian group. The study is an aid to mathematicians as well as physicists.

GUEST, P. G. Numerical Methods of Curve Fitting. 422 p.

6 x 9 in. $15.00 CAMBRIDGE, MAR. 24

An account of methods for reducing sets of observations and fitting curves to numerical data, dealing particularly with the fitting of polynomial and special types of curves. This work is an essential reference book for all research laboratories.

LANGER, Rudolph E., ed. Partial Differential Equations and Continuum Mechanics. 397 p.

6 x 9½ in. $5.00 WISCONSIN, APR. 28

This book is a report of the Proceedings of an International Conference Conducted by the Mathematics Research Center at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, June 7-15, 1960.

MICHAEL, Donald N. Proposed Studies on the Implications of Peaceful Space Activities for Human Affairs. See under POLITICAL SCIENCE.

MURRAY, Francis J. Mathematical Machines. Vol. I: Digital Computers. Vol. II: Analog Devices. 300 p. and 365 p.

7½ x 10 in. Vol. I, $12.00; Vol. II, $17.50
COLUMBIA, JULY 17

Prepared under the auspices of the Office of Naval Research, this exhaustive work fully recognizes the vital contribution of mathematical machines to investigations in science and technology.

OSBORN, Roger. Tables of All Primitive Roots of Odd Primes Less than 1000. 70 p.

6½ x 9½ in. $3.00 TEXAS, MAY 30

This little volume is an invaluable tool for number theorists, whose study and use of these tables can result in the discovery of many new properties of primitive roots.

ROBINSON, G. de B. Representation Theory of the Symmetric Group. (Mathematical Expositions Series, no. 12.) 204 p., tables.

5½ x 9 in. $6.00 TORONTO, MAY 20

This book is devoted to a study of the linear representations, both ordinary and modular, of the symmetric group \mathfrak{S}_n , now important in many different contexts. It provides evidence of the desirability of a modification of the inducing process in the modular case.

SIMPSON, George Gaylord. Life of the Past. Reissue. (Yale Paperbound, Y-42.) 198 p.

5½ x 8 in. Paper, $1.45 YALE, JUNE 21

One of the world's outstanding paleontologists presents an authoritative introduction to the study of fossil life for the general reader and scientist alike.

SOLOMON, Herbert, ed. Studies in Item Analysis and Prediction. (Stanford Mathematical Studies in the Social Sciences, VI.) 310 p., graphs, charts.

6½ x 9½ in. $8.75 STANFORD, MAY 23

This study presents new theoretical developments in test design and a classification of individuals on the basis of responses to tests. It should prove useful to psychometricians, mathematical statisticians, educational psychologists and research workers in tests and measurement.

UNIVERSITY of Illinois Committee on School Mathematics. High School Mathematics: Unit 7—Mathematical Induction.

8½ x 11 in. Students' ed., Paper. 168 p., $1.25; teachers' ed., loose-leaf sheets, 336 p., $2.75

ILLINOIS, JULY 31

This is the fourth of the official texts for the new and now widely used system of teaching high school mathematics. It covers mathematical induction and follows Unit 6, geometry.

Medicine

HASHINGER, Edward H. Arthur E. Hertzler: The Kansas Horse-and-Buggy Doctor. (Logan Clendenen Lectures on the History and Philosophy of Medicine, ninth ser.) 37 p., illus.

5½ x 8½ in. $2.00 KANSAS, MAY 8

A personal sketch (with a bibliography of his writings) of the Kansas physician who, aside from his picturesque personality and special competence, was most often identified with the old-fashioned country doctor.

MILLER, George E., ed. Teaching and Learning in Medical School. (Commonwealth Fund Book.) 304 p.

6½ x 9½ in. $5.50 HARVARD, JUNE 14

Designed specifically for medical educators, this book deals with learning theories and educational techniques. Dr. Miller is Director of Research in Medical Education and Professor of Medicine at University of Illinois College of Medicine.

SOMERS, Herman Miles, and Anne Ramsay. Doctors, Patients, and Health Insurance: The Organization and Financing of Medical Care. 576 p.

6 x 9 in. $7.50 BROOKINGS, MAY 22

This comprehensive study covers the technological revolution in medicine, the rising expectations of consumers, the rising costs of medical care, the growth and operations of private health insurance plans and the changing doctor-patient relationship.

WILLIAMS, Robert R. Toward the Conquest of Beriberi. 338 p., tables, figs., illus.

6½ x 9¼ in. $7.50 HARVARD, MAY 20

In this summarization of all that is known about beriberi, Dr. Williams gives an account of the 26 years of research which culminated in the synthesis of thiamin (vitamin B₁), the antiberiberi vitamin.

Music

BASART, Ann Phillips. Serial Music. 151 p. 6 x 9¼ in. $4.00 CALIFORNIA, MAY 4

A classified bibliography of writings on twelve-tone and electronic music, this is the first comprehensive reference work devoted to one of the most important developments in contemporary music.

HOWELL, Almonte C., Jr., ed. Five French Baroque Organ Masses. 84 p.

9¼ x 12 in. Paper, $4.00 KENTUCKY, JULY 1

These masses by Nivers, Corrette and three unknown composers are the only French organ masses up to 1703 which have not heretofore been published. Nivers' and Corrette's masses are respectively the earliest and latest datable examples of the French Baroque organ mass.

LOWINSKY, Edward E. Tonality and Atonality in Sixteenth-Century Music. 99 p., musical examples.

7½ x 10½ in. Paper, $3.00 CALIFORNIA, JUNE 6

The author of this study uncovers the roots of both tonality and atonality in the music of the Renaissance. He explores musical trends before and after Glareanus, carefully revealing the subtle change from modal to tonal thinking.

PAWLOWSKA, Harriet M., ed. Merrily We Sing: 105 Polish Folksongs. Musical analysis by Grace L. Engel. Fwd. by Emelyn Elizabeth Gardner. 263 p.

7 x 10 in. $8.00 WAYNE STATE, JUNE 15

This collection of 105 Polish folksongs gives the words to the songs in Polish and English. Each song is presented with its music. An analysis of the music and the evolution of many of the songs is also included.

Philosophy and Religion

ACADEMY of Religion and Mental Health. Religion, Culture, and Mental Health. 157 p.

5½ x 8 in. $3.50 NEW YORK, MAY 17

This book presents the proceedings of the third symposium of the Academy of Religion and Mental Health, at which sociologists, anthropologists and theologians considered the relationships of the social, cultural and religious disciplines.

BETTONI, Efre. Duns Scotus: The Basic Principles of His Philosophy. 220 p.

5¼ x 8½ in. $4.75 CATHOLIC, MAY 19

This book, translated from the Italian by Bernardine Bonansea, presents Duns Scotus as the genuine representative of the Augustinian trend of thought who aims to meet Thomistic Aristotelianism and to fuse it into a more complete synthesis.

BURR, Nelson R., with James Ward Smith and A. Leland Jamison, eds. Religion in American Life. Vol. IV: A Critical Bibliography of Religion in America. 2 vols. 1219 p. 5½ x 8½ in. $17.50 per set PRINCETON, MAY 8

A critical and descriptive bibliography, arranged topically, cross-referenced and indexed. Vol. I includes surveys and histories; Vol. II covers aspects of religion in society, in the arts and in literature.

DOERNBERG, Erwin. Henry VIII and Luther. See under HISTORY: EUROPEAN.

DUBOS, René. The Dreams of Reason: Science and Utopias. 167 p.

5½ x 8½ in. $5.00 COLUMBIA, JULY 17

The relationship of science to modern society is explored in lively and original terms in this book. Assuming that science cannot separate itself from society because it is society which determines the goals of science, Dr. Dubos states that it is now crucial that society restate the goals of science.

GOUDGE, T. A. The Ascent of Life: A Philosophical Study of the Theory of Evolution. 236 p.

5½ x 8½ in. $4.95

TORONTO, MAY 13

This book is the first sustained discussion by a philosopher of present-day evolutionary theory. The major advance made since classical Darwinism is outlined and a number of questions, linguistic, logical and metaphysical, asked. The work ends with a consideration of the question, "Is evolution finished?"

HALL, Everett W. Our Knowledge of Fact and Value. 220 p.

5½ x 8½ in. $5.00

NORTH CAROLINA, MAY 27

This pioneering work questions the basic assumptions about experience which have shaped epistemological problems for four centuries, and provides a new approach in which these problems do not arise.

JORAVSKY, David. Soviet Marxism and Natural Science, 1917-1932. 433 p.

5½ x 8½ in. $7.50

COLUMBIA, MAY 8

This book examines the Soviet Marxist philosophy of natural science as it developed in its first phase and reviews arguments Soviet Marxists used in defining this philosophy. The author also discusses the policies and dissensions of the Soviet Communist Party from the Revolution to the early 30's.

KIRKWOOD, M. M. Santayana: Saint of the Imagination. 240 p.

6 x 9 in. $5.00

TORONTO, JULY 15

An intimate picture of Santayana, as well as an exposition of his thought, drawn from his letters, his autobiography and philosophical works, which reveal him as an engaging human being and an exciting thinker. The book will be suggestive for the general reader and a helpful introduction for the student.

LOVEJOY, Arthur O. The Reason, the Understanding and Time. 210 p.

5 x 7 in. $3.95

JOHNS HOPKINS, MAY 26

In this ideological analysis of the influence of Kant and Bergson, Dr. Lovejoy is concerned with the history of the concept of "The Reason," "The Ego" and "Time" and other related concepts which had great vogue and influence in German philosophy in the late 18th and early 19th centuries.

MISIAK, Henryk. The Philosophical Roots of Scientific Psychology. 142 p.

5½ x 8 in. $3.00

FORDHAM, JULY 5

In this study, the author shows how scientific psychology reflects its philosophical heritage and how philosophical systems (dualism, empiricism, associationism) have influenced the definition, character and orientation of psychology.

NICHOLS, James Hastings. Romanticism in American Theology. 322 p.

5½ x 8½ in. $7.50

CHICAGO, APR. 18

This study of religious thought and life in America in the generation before the Civil War focuses on Nevin and Schaff, who pioneered in America the theological reinterpretations stimulated by German idealism in philosophy and the new theories of historical development.

PAYNE, Robert. The Three Worlds of Albert Schweitzer. Reissue. (Midland Book, 29.) 252 p.

5½ x 7½ in. Paper, $1.75

INDIANA, FEB. 24

Medicine, music, theology—Dr. Albert Schweitzer's contributions and role in these three worlds are fully developed in this inspiring biography, unique in its view of the complete man.

Political Science

APTER, David E. The Political Kingdom in Uganda: A Study in Bureaucratic Nationalism. 498 p.

6½ x 9½ in. $10.00

PRINCETON, JUNE 26

The political upheavals in Africa, focusing world attention on "what shall remain after colonialism departs," present problems of transition from traditional patterns to modern political systems. This analysis of the Kingdom of Buganda describes the history of the country from the point of view of political sociology.

ASAD, Muhammad. The Principles of State and Government in Islam. 107 p.

5½ x 8½ in. $3.00

CALIFORNIA, MAY 11

This work demonstrates how manifold forms of the Islamic state may emerge from Islamic foundations, and how, essentially, any state that emerges, to be truly Islamic, must incorporate the doctrine of government by consent and council.

ASHER, Robert E. Grants, Loans, and Local Currencies: Their Role in Foreign Aid. 142 p. 6 x 9 in. Paper, $1.50; cloth, $2.50

BROOKINGS, MAY 15

A timely study that analyzes the financial arrangements for providing foreign aid and the choices that confront the nation today. The authors propose new procedures for evaluating requirements for "hard" loans, "soft" loans and grants.

BECHHOEFER, Bernard G. Postwar Negotiations for Arms Control. 641 p.

6 x 9 in. $8.75

BROOKINGS, JULY 24

A study of the record of 15 years of experience by a participant in the major postwar arms policy discussions, concluding with an estimate of where negotiations now stand and of the direction in which they are headed.

BENSON, Lee. The Concept of Jacksonian Democracy: New York as a Test Case. 351 p.

6½ x 9½ in. $6.00

PRINCETON, JUNE 26

An analysis of the voting cycles, party makeup, and social, ethnic and religious patterns of New York during the 19th century. The author contends that the concept of Jacksonian democracy bears little relation to New York political behavior at that time and suggests a new theory of American voting behavior.

BINDER, Leonard. Religion and Politics in Pakistan. 440 p.

5½ x 8½ in. $7.50

CALIFORNIA, JUNE 7

Drawing upon an intimate knowledge of Muslim political theory, medieval and modern, and upon his close observation of men and events in present-day Pakistan, the author analyzes the issues and the partisan attitudes of the various factions.

BROOKS, Glenn E. When Governors Convene: The Governors' Conference and National Politics. 186 p.

5½ x 8½ in. $4.50

JOHNS HOPKINS, JULY 24

Using this influential conference as a focal point, Mr. Brooks evaluates the position of the American governor at mid-century and studies the complexities of the contemporary governors' position in national and local politics and their unique institutional role.

CHILDS, Marquis W. Sweden: The Middle Way. Reissue. (Yale Paperbound, Y-49.) 199 p.

5½ x 8 in. Paper, $1.45

YALE, JUNE 21

Revised and with a new introduction, this classic of political analysis describes and evaluates the practical experiment in government, economics and sociology which has evolved between the extremes of capitalism and communism.

ESMAN, Milton J. Needed: An Education and Research Base To Support America's Expanded Commitments Overseas. 46 p.

6 x 9 in. Paper, $1.50 PITTSBURGH, JUNE 12
